FOREWORD

IN presenting this book, it is the purpose of the Editors to give its readers true glimpses into the many activities of the Institute and student life on the "Hill." We wish to thank all those who have contributed in any way to the success of this book. Some have helped us by sacrificing time and energy; some by buying advertisements, and some by buying Annuals.

Perhaps rude and overly zealous critics may detect and display our many shortcomings in preparing this Annual. Yet, if, perchance, some twenty years from now, we may live over in these pages, the happy days spent on the "Hill"—its pleasures, its trials, and its triumphs; if its memories come back to us as of yesterday, and if the ideals instilled in us surge anew within us; then, indeed, despite its failings, "THE SABRE," 1928, will have accomplished its mission and its Editors will feel content.

DEDICATION

To a man of sterling character, of indomitable will, of inflexible purpose, of lofty ideals and of helpful and sympathetic nature:

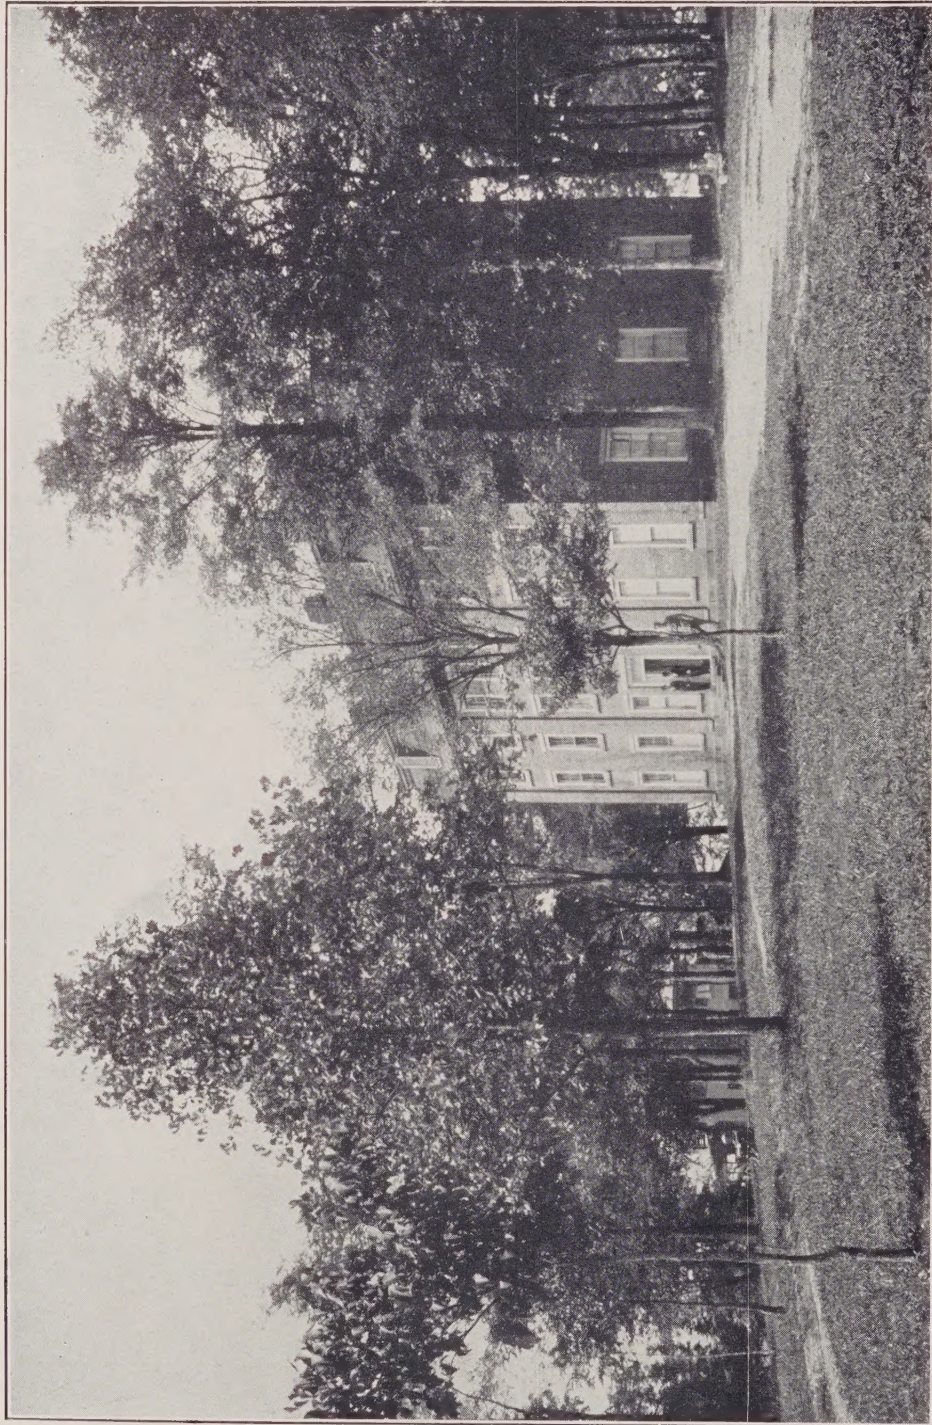

To a man whose character has done much to instill in us high and worthy ideals and whose untiring patience and helpful advice have made possible the publication of this book:

To

MAJOR ROY WEBSTER,

our faithful friend, advisor and teacher, we, the Editors, dedicate this,

Euclid Liston Miller

FEBRUARY 4, 1907—MARCH 1, 1928

Euclid Miller, Senior at the Institute, passed away at the Concord Hospital after an illness of only two days. His passing sent a wave of grief and sorrow throughout the Cadet Corps, whose members had known him so favorably and well during the past three years.

Miller was an unusually quiet young man, but beneath that calm exterior beat a heart of gold. In all his relations with his fellow students as Cadet Officer, he was strict, but absolutely fair, and gained and held their confidence and respect.

Whenever he was assigned to any duty by the Faculty it was considered as already performed, so great was his fidelity to any trust or task imposed upon him. He was ambitious and was putting forth every effort to equip himself for a larger service to his fellow men when his career was cut short by death. Brave, faithful and true, he met the last enemy with that same faith with which he had met other problems of life.

While it is hard to understand his being cut down on the threshold of young manhood, yet we are confident that he has entered into the larger life.

ROY WEBSTER

Harry E. Barrier

The students of the Collegiate Institute were saddened to learn during the summer, of the death of Harry E. Barrier, one of the best, most reliable and most trustworthy students the Institute has had in many years.

It was my privilege to have known him intimately and well, perhaps better than any other faculty member, because he was a member of the Gerhardt Literary Society, where I came in close contact with him. From the beginning of our acquaintanceship he impressed me as possessing those qualities and characteristics which made him a young man of unusual promise.

Harry was ambitious for an education. He was trustworthy, kind, and loyal. By precept and example he stood always and everywhere for rectitude of conduct and righteousness of life.

He sleeps his last sleep in the village church yard at Georgeville, his home community, 'mid scenes he knew and loved so well; there he rests until the coming of his Savior and his Lord.

THE SPIRIT OF M. P. C. I.

THE SPIRIT of M. P. C. I. is epitomized in the motto which has been a guiding principle from the beginning—"Merit, the Measure of Success." The interpretation and application of this principle have given to Mount Pleasant Collegiate Institute its distinguishing characteristics. At the very beginning of the Institute's history, the Principals had in mind a very definite contribution to the education and training of boys and young men for success and usefulness in life. This idea has been a dominant factor in determining the conduct and management of the institution.

In a real sense the aim of M. P. C. I. has been the symmetrical development of the young people under its tuition, a development that was concerned with the intellect, the body and the spirit. Accordingly, the working out of the curriculum and the admission of extra-curriculum activities have been with a view to this end. Moreover, the policies of government and the relation of administrative officers and teachers to students have been in harmony with this outstanding objective.

The Collegiate Institute has been conservative in the matter of course of study, holding fast to that which had been found to be good and slow to adopt "new fangled" ideas which, though popular for the time, have not been found conducive to scholarship and preparation for efficient service. Wide latitude in the matter of electives and ready admission and introduction of new subjects to the detriment and crowding out of fundamentals in real education have found no place at M. P. C. I. Its course of study is designed to train the powers of mind, to furnish a fund of useful knowledge, and to lay a foundation in the principal branches of learning upon which may be erected more pretentious superstructures by advanced study and research. This policy has been justified by results. Graduates of M. P. C. I. who have taken the prescribed course with credit have never failed to distinguish themselves in college, university or technical school; they have attained to marked success in business, industry and profession.

Emphasis has always been laid upon the efficacy and worthwhileness of literary society work. The four Literary Societies, conducted under the guidance and supervision of faculty members, in which exercises in Debate, Essay writing, Letter writing, Declamation and written criticism are required of the members every week have a telling effect upon M. P. C. I. men—all of them. Every student belongs to one or the other of the Societies. Judging from the decadence of Literary Societies in so many of our institutions, one would be justified in looking for a generation of youth among whom public speaking was a lost art. Not so with the sons of M. P. C. I. Those old mottoes to be found on the walls of the Phi Sigma Phi and Philalathian Society Halls, "Fama Ambitionis Victoria," "Veritas Scientiam Coronat," and "Excelsior," still challenge the youth on the Hill to high endeavor and steady, continuous effort for self-improvement and literary attainments.

The relations of teachers and students at M. P. C. I. are close. Every teacher knows every student by name and stands ready to give counsel and assistance. The personal touch and individual attention count for much, and explain the attachment generally felt by M. P. C. I. men—an attachment which often increases with passing of years, when appreciation is enhanced by the contrast of experience in other surroundings where personal interest is not so manifest.

Sana Mens in Corpore sano is accepted as a fundamental truth at M. P. C. I. The morning setting-up exercises, the drill and various athletic sports are fostered and encouraged with the end in view that the bodies of students may be kept strong and healthy. Well developed physiques and erect carriage result. Vigor and an optimistic outlook on life characterize the average cadet. These qualities not only engender higher self-respect, but command the respectful regard of others.

The development of intellectual and physical powers is fine, but to cultivate these and neglect the spiritual side of man is a tragedy. The atmosphere about M. P. C. I. is charged with the idea of the importance of the spiritual. The traditions of the school, the life and professions of the instructors, the Chapel services every school day, Bible study in the regular course, the program of the Y. M. C. A., every Sunday attendance upon Sunday School and divine service—all these are indicative of the emphasis placed upon the religious training at M. P. C. I. Sophisticated worldliness, blatant skepticism, and shameless irreverence, all too prevalent among youth of today, do not thrive in the atmosphere which pervades the campus of M. P. C. I.

That man is a social being is a truth that has recognition at M. P. C. I. While it is enjoined upon Cadets to give first things first place and not allow "side issues" to usurp the place that should be given to weightier matters, yet a balanced program is recommended. Romances not a few have had their genesis in the social activities incident to student life in Mount Pleasant, and there are many couples who, no doubt, are persuaded that their choicest acquisitions are the prizes they drew from "games" played while students at Mount Pleasant.

All in all, who says that the spirit of M. P. C. I. is not one to challenge the admiration of buoyant, forward-looking youth?

GIRLS AT M. P. C. I.

Following announcement that Mont Amoena Seminary would not open for session 1927-1928, solicitous inquiries were received by the management of the Collegiate Institute as to the admission of girls. This presented a rather perplexing question. The Collegiate Institute is a distinctively Boys' School. The military feature is definitely established. The admission of girls seemed incongruous. However, there was a disposition to accommodate those knocking for admission, especially those who were desirous of completing their preparation for college. Accordingly, it was decided to receive such as Day Students.

In the September Institute News, something in the nature of a prophecy was expressed in these words: "An added touch toward the refinement of the finished product—a 100 per cent successful school year—will be realized, let us believe, in the presence of a limited number of sisters counted for the first time in our student body. Just enough to give color to a handsome picture and set the pace, maybe, in scholastic achievement!"

The eight girls who were enrolled have fulfilled the "prophecy". The cut of the "Specials" is evidence of the enhancement in the "color" and "refinement" of the student body; and, those who have access to the record can testify that the girls suffer not in comparison in the matter of "scholastic achievement."

"Bozan" is probably the most popular member of the Senior Class, doubtless because he is not "stuck up" and does not allow honors to turn his head. His forte seems to be managing teams, etc., for he is manager of almost everything on the "Hill" and only lack of time prevents him from managing more.

"Preach" is one of the most dependable members of the Senior Class. Although quiet and unassuming, he is always ready to bear his part of the burdens of the Senior Class. We could not get along on "Trig" were it not for "Preach," as he is, undoubtedly, the best Math. student in the class and is always ready to help us in a "pinch." We predict that his ability to make friends and his interest and determination will win for him success in whatever he undertakes.

"Ken" has been with us three years and he has, by his personality, won for himself a host of friends. He has been with us for only three years, but we have learned to regard him as a valued friend. He is an athlete of no mean ability, having been induced to try out for football last year and having made, before the year was over, one of the team's most valuable players. We wish him the same success at Lenoir-Rhyne that he has achieved here.

Sam comes to us from Concord High School. He has been with us since last year and we have come to regard him as a real friend. Although he does not take a prominent part in the campus activities he is well liked because of his good nature and his unassuming manner. His real genius lies on the Basket ball field, he being one of the best shots on the team and able to handle himself like a veteran.

"Willie" hails from "The City Unlimited" and never ceases to remind us of the fact. He joined us during the latter part of '26 and immediately began to take a prominent part in all the campus activities. He is an athlete of some ability having made a letter in three sports and having been elected Captain of two of them. He is going to West Point next year and if he continues to exhibit the same qualities of determination and ambition that he has shown on the "Hill," we have no fears for his success.

Glenn has been with us for five years and throughout this time he has been a consistent worker. He is always ready to help a friend in need and seems never to worry, no matter how frequent or how hard the tests. He has one failing, however; that is, his habit of going to Greensboro about every three weeks. Colonel says that he is a "ladies' man" and from the number of perfumed letters bearing the "Greensboro" post mark, we are beginning to believe it's true. However, we are confident that he will make a success of his chosen profession, Civil Engineering.

And now is the task; to write up a man the evidences of whose all-round ability are to be seen above, in so small a space, and give him justice. That he is the most outstanding man in the Class can be seen from the fact that he was elected each year to guide the destinies of the class. The class counts itself more than lucky to be able to count such a man among its members.

Russell, the "Hickory Nut," is without doubt the wittiest member of our class. He is continually harassing the faculty members with his satiric retorts. Although he never studies, he manages to make better grades than the average. He is one of the best speakers in the school having seemingly become a public speaker overnight when he appeared in the Gerhardt Public Program last year.

"Gip," the quietest member of our class, is also one of the most faithful. He has little to say but when it comes time he usually comes up with his share of the responsibility. He has been with us for four years and in this time he has won for himself a place in the hearts of all his classmates.

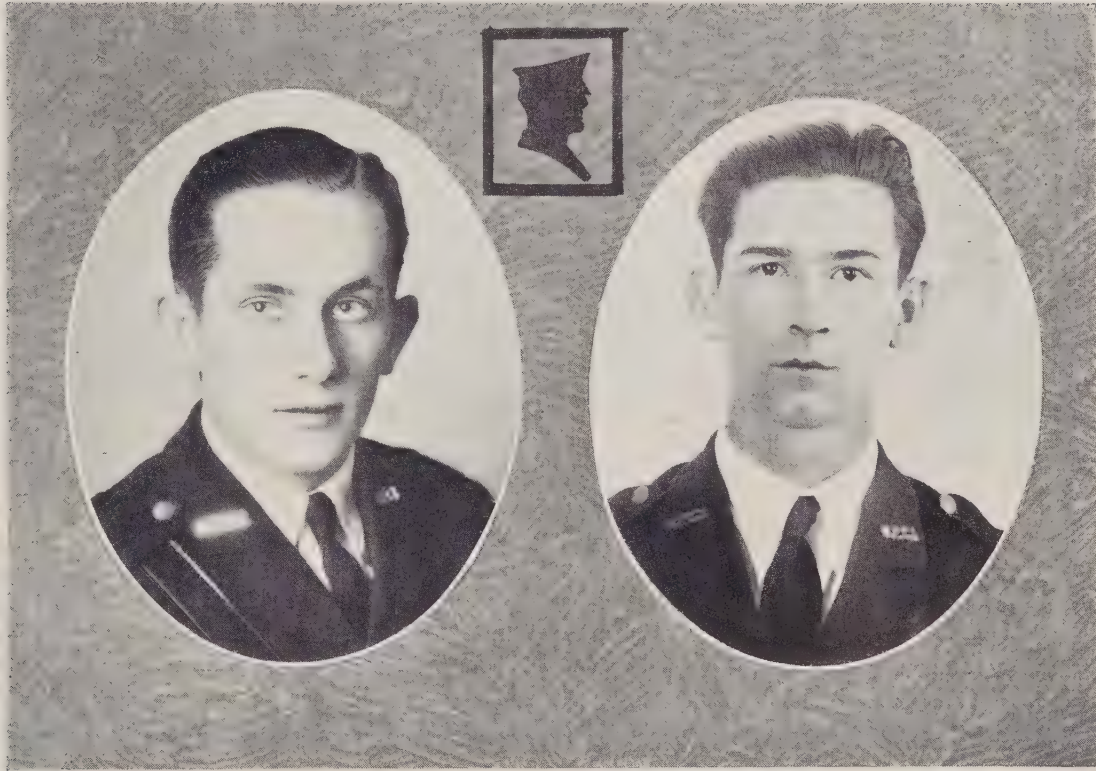

PAUL HENRY LIPE

Paul is our puzzle. He appears never to study and yet he manages to make as good grades as those of us who burn the midnight oil. He is one of the best speakers in the school, having won the Declaimer's Medal and appeared in public on numerous occasions. As a football player he is no slouch as he was induced to try for the team without ever having seen a football game, and made the team the first year. We wish him the greatest success in whatever he undertakes.

McAllister has been with us for the whole five years and has been loyal to his class throughout. He is another of the bright members of the class, making among the highest grades in the class. He is especially good in mathematics.

He is also one of the speakers of the school, having appeared in public as a speaker on at least seven occasions. We wish him luck at Carolina.

"Boss Man" is one of our members who never worries. Although he has the name of being the class loafer, he is not so much of a loafer as one might suppose. He is somewhat of an athlete, having tried out for three sports and made all the trips of the teams. Although he does not take a very prominent part in the campus activities, we cannot help believing that there is something in Steve that will enable him to make his mark.

From the "Queen City" comes a man who is in every activity on the Hill and is equally proficient at them all. We do not see how he manages to do so many things and do them so well. It goes without saying that the world will give him a stellar role, just as M. P. C. I. has done.

HUBERT HARVEY SLOOP

CHINA GROVE, N. C.

Business Manager, "THE SABRE," '28; Advertising Manager, THE INSTITUTE NEWS, '28; Class Historian, '28.

Sloop is without doubt the hardest worker in the class. He has worked his way through and at the same time has managed to make grades which were above the average in his studies. We predict that his level headedness and his genuine common sense will enable him to achieve success in anything which he undertakes.

ALMA IRENE TUCKER

MOUNT PLEASANT, N. C.

Gerhardt Literary Society, '28.

Alma, also has been with us one year and she has more than held her own in the matter of grades. She is the only girl in the class and of course has the honor of being the first girl to graduate from the Institute. Especially has she helped to raise the standard of the Gerhardt Society. She has been a faithful member and has performed her work in a manner which would do credit to any boy in the Society.

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

AS THE five years spent at the Institute draw to a close we pause to review them. We meditate upon the great variety of things which they have held for us. First of all, the course has been a most exacting taskmaster. Our work here has been different from that of the ordinary school. Certain standards were prescribed for us to follow. One of the advantages of the system is that we were made to feel much at home by personal contact with our teachers. This personal contact has done much toward instilling within us right ideals and high motives. In every way, spiritually, mentally and physically, the Institute has molded us, shaped us, and trained us, so that now we are ready to step up into a higher institution of learning.

From the very beginning we may have thought that our life here, with its restrictions and requirements was a bit unpleasant but as the incidents were made mellow with the passing of time we realized more thoroughly that the Institute was the place for us.

It was hard for some of us our first year, to adjust ourselves to the rules and regulations of the Institute. Some of us could not realize that all the different bugle calls were intended for different formations. We were absent or late for many formations for the reason that we were unaccustomed to this kind of life. The historian tells us that the "Battle of Tours" was fought in the year 732 but we are forced to disagree with him; we believe it was fought by us in the year 1923. At least we did our part of the marching to win the "battle."

However, time passed and we were in the midst of May before we knew it. The first year was nearly over and we were deeply grateful. We began to turn our thoughts to final examinations, competitive drill, commencement, then homeward. The first year is quite all right as material for reminiscences; it is frightful; yet it is wonderful while it lasts.

The second year was, to some extent, one of advancement. We felt ourselves just a little above our fellow cadets because we could tell them much about the place. We were caught congratulating one another on being promoted to the rank of Corporals. Even with all our pride we were soon taught that much more was expected of us in the second year than in the preceding year. We soon realized that Rome was not built in a single day. We realized, too, that a thorough mastery of each day's duties is the only way to face the problem. We were taught how to study and apply ourselves to our work. Time played its unassuming part, as usual and before we realized it, May was again upon us. When the day arrived in September for us to report back to school only a few were reported as missing. Many newcomers joined our ranks at this time. Only a few weeks had passed when we realized that we were not quite as important as we had thought. Our course was somewhat easier than that of the preceding year. We were rather carried away with ourselves, looking ahead and thinking that it would be only a short time until we could consider ourselves graduates of the Preparatory Department and that we would be qualified to enter the Collegiate Department or some college. After being recognized as truly wonderful by the lower classmen, the third year passed without very many events worthy of note.

The fourth year was different from any of the preceding years. Our course was shifted from a strict selected course to a part elective. Some chose the modern languages while others were content to battle with the ancient languages. Our duties, both academic and military, were comparatively hard; we were taking a course equivalent to Freshman work in college. We were slowly but surely coming to the realization that we were upper classmen, about to assume the responsibility of taming the rowdy Sub-Freshmen, quieting the incorrigible Freshmen, and holding in check the "would be important" Sophomores. We had the opportunity to look into the mysteries of the activities to see what made the "wheels" go around, so that we could keep them running later on. We became increasingly alive to the situation and as we grew to know each other more intimately we began to work more as a unit.

Commencement soon was upon us and promotion left us on the threshold of our Senior year.

Senior year is quite properly the climax of the drama of our five years spent on the "Hill." It could not have been introduced more fittingly than it was since we were acknowledged "The Class" of the Institute. That our Class is the most persistent class that has graduated from the Institute in many years is attested to by the fact that we had eight members who had been with the class for five years. At the beginning, we found it hard to rid ourselves of our under class ideas and assume the dignity expected of us as Seniors. Some of us let our "egos" regain their former size and it looked as if they would, if let alone, swamp everything within range. After the first few lessons in Trig., the sunflowers of the class withered and the "egos" were buried never to live again. We realized the seriousness of our work and allied ourselves as a class to uphold the Honor and traditions of the Institute.

On the first of March we were deeply saddened and shocked by the untimely death at the Concord Hospital, after a short illness, of Lieutenant Euclid Liston Miller. By his death, we lost a staunch member of our class, a loyal friend and a gentleman.

Our sins of omission and commission compare very favorably with those of other classes who have gone before us, and give us no cause for regret.

In conclusion, as individuals anything may happen to us; after May 30, we shall never meet again as a class. We will be scattered hither and yon, and the probability of what may happen to us as individuals approaches infinity. Let us kindle anew our Hopes and Ambitions, that, through hard work and persistent effort, we may reach our goal. But whatever may happen and whatever may be, we shall never forget the five years spent at M. P. C. I., and we shall ever be proud of our Alma Mater.

SENIOR CLASS POEM

*Five years we've spent upon the "Hill,"
Five years have flown away;
The thoughts with tears our eyes do fill,
Of approaching Commencement Day.*

*The game of life we've just begun,
The trials are yet to be;
But as the race of life we run,
We look, C. I., to thee.*

*We'll oft remember in thy walls,
What precepts thou hast taught;
And if us wordly pleasure calls,
Our strength will want for naught.*

*We'll ne'er forget the times we've had,
The heartaches and the pleasures;
The things we've learned, the friends we've made,
These are as valued treasures.*

*And now, dear Class, as we are parting,
As we do say "Farewell,"
Let's ever keep the standard floating,
That we for years have held.*

SENIOR CLASS PROPHECY

OUR EVERY action and impulse is controlled in a measure by fate. By this reason and no other can we account for our sudden impulse, one bright and sunny day, to rove, we knew not where. We were afflicted with a spirit of wanderlust and a desire to see the world as it is. In the words of the poet, "There is a destiny that makes us brothers; none goes his way alone." Before we had gone far we found that the words were literally true because as we arrived at Raleigh, our first stop, whom should we meet but our friend and erstwhile classmate, P. H. Lipe, who informs us that he has been elected Speaker of the North Carolina Legislature. While talking with him about our former classmates we learn that Sam Davis has been elected Mayor of Concord, N. C.

The next stop on our itinerary is Baltimore, Md., where, passing by Christ Church and casually noticing the bulletin board, we see the name of K. F. Conrad, one of our former classmates, as Pastor of the Church. Approaching the center of the city we are agreeably surprized to meet our friend, H. C. McAllister. On asking him why he had wondered so far from home we learn that he is the representative of North Carolina at the meeting of the United States Medical Association. Jumping from here to Philadelphia, we happen upon our classmate, G. A. Kephart and are delighted to learn that he is the owner of the Philadelphia Steam Laundry, one of the largest laundries in Philadelphia.

By the same whim of fate that prompted us to begin the journey, we next decided to go from here to New York. Arriving at the hotel there and picking up the New York Times we noticed on the editorial page the name of P. H. Rhodes as Editor of the Paper. Looking further to the sport page we see in the line-up of the New York Times we noticed, on the editorial page, the name of P. H. Rhodes as wondering at the sudden rise of our former schoolmate we notice almost at the same instant, that R. M. Wilson is quarterback on the famous professional football team of New York, and that W. A. Shulenberger, Jr., is representing the United States as a pole vaulter in the Olympics. Acting on a sudden impulse we betake ourselves from thence to the metropolis of Chicago. By the merest of chances we run across our former classmate, G. L. Barrier, and find that he is director of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. We find also that Alma Tucker is the owner of the De Luxe Beauty Parlor; that our friend H. H. Sloop is contemplating a non-stop flight around the world. We learn that W. H. Griffin is Commandant of Cadets at West Point. We are also reminded that C. G. Hahn is the owner of a large barber shop in the heart of Chicago. Journeying from there to Washington we learn that C. R. Huffman is a Senator from North Carolina. While talking with him we learn that C. N. Alexander, Jr. is proprietor of a large furniture establishment in Florida. From there we turn our footsteps homeward, wondering at what we had seen and comparing the present achievements of our classmates with our former predictions of their future achievements.

SENIOR CLASS WILL

May 1, 1928.

WE, THE Class of '28 of the Collegiate Institute, being of a sound and disposing state of mind, yet mindful of uncertainties of this, our collegiate life, do hereby make, publish and decree this to be our last will and testament, hereby revoking all previous wills made by us:

Item 1.—We do hereby will and bequeath to the Juniors our precious Senior privileges, namely, those of occupying the coveted Senior corner in Chapel, of leaving Chapel first, and of enjoying 10:30 leave each Saturday night.

Item 2.—We do also will and bequeath to the Juniors the responsibilities which the Seniors, by reason of their age, do hold, admonishing them that they should not too lightly regard them and reminding them that this influence, whether good or bad, will be reflected in the whole school.

Item 3.—We do bequeath to the aforementioned Juniors with the greatest reluctance, our famous and oft abused Senior dignity. It is our earnest wish and hope that they will make at least an attempt to attain the high water mark set by us.

Item 4.—We do bequeath, last but not least, to the Faculty, our heartfelt gratitude for the manner in which they have led us through the miry road to knowledge, with the hope that they will ever remember the Class of '28 as being truly appreciative of their efforts on our behalf.

Done this, the first day of May, 1928.

JUNIOR CLASS HISTORY

THE SHIP of the Sub-Freshman Class set sail upon the dark and dreary waters of a new school routine in September of 1925. The new tasks, to which we were wholly unaccustomed, proved to be reefs in the way of our smooth sailing, but we soon become accustomed to the high seas and difficult tasks. However, our utmost devotion and loyalty to our class proved to be oil on the troubled waters of this our first year here at the Institute.

After three months off duty we set sail again, this time with more assurance because of last year's experiences. Some of us were raised in rank while others continued in the tedious task of the year before. Sailing was not as smooth as it might have been, although a great improvement upon the year before.

Behold, our third year at sea brought us recognition from the larger ships as well as from the smaller ones. A few of our crew failed to return from their leave of absence, but their places were taken by new members who showed remarkable ability and took the places of our lost classmates with a keen determination. Sailing this year was easier than ever before and it seemed that the winds were favorable to us in every circumstance.

We returned again to our duties with renewed vigor as we knew that only one more year would be necessary to complete our voyage. Through our regular performance of our duties we find that we have won the respect and admiration of the school as a whole. We now realize that our long hoped-for goal is reached and soon we shall bear the name of dignified Seniors. We are looking forward to our next year's return, at which time we will be dictators instead of spectators. We are also hoping that our present mates are able to return to their respective places.

SOPHOMORE CLASS HISTORY

ON A BRIGHT, sunny day in September, 1926, a group of singularly intelligent boys entered the barracks of the Collegiate Institute—this was the Class of '31. The lordly upper-classmen contemptuously called us Sub-Freshmen but this did not greatly perturb us for we realized that these same supercilious upper-classmen had once been called the same thing.

It occurred to us, moreover, that if they had risen so high there was nothing that could keep us down. With the knowledge of the greatness destined us, and with the realization that moth-eaten customs would keep us in obscurity, the whole class settled down determined to make the best of the situation and to bide our time as best we might until we reached the stage where we could be called Freshmen. We found, like other classes who have gone before us, that everything was new. Some of the regulations seemed even foolish until we were able to see what the purposes of the different rules were.

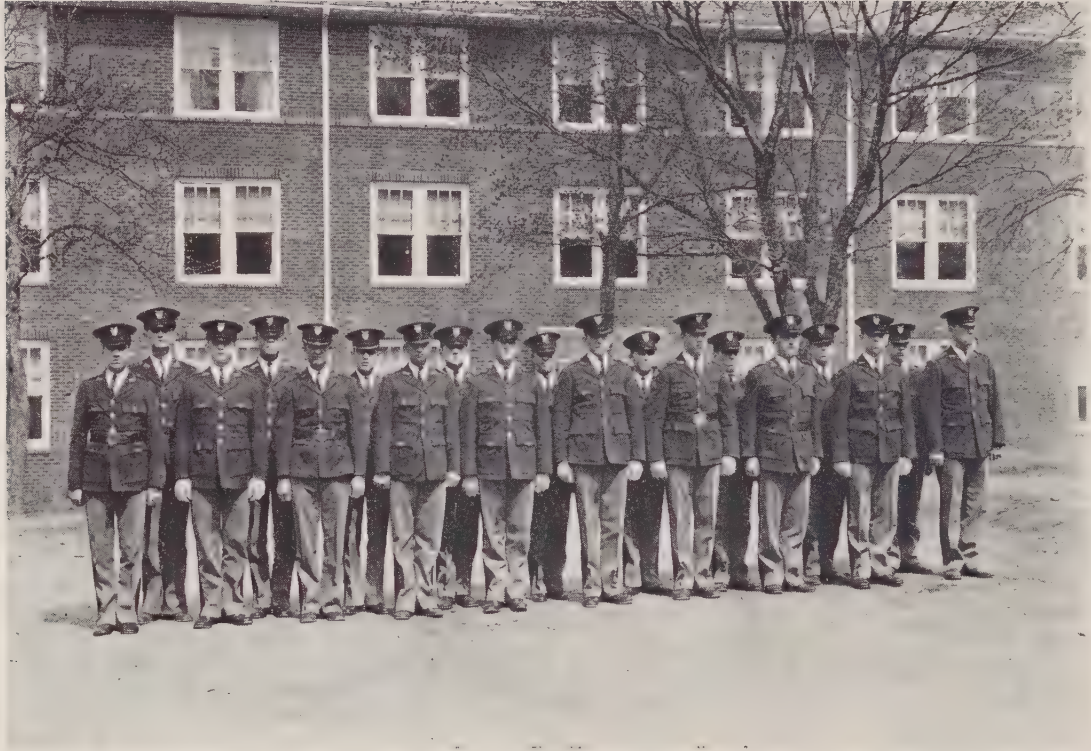

Needless to say, the first year represented a rather uneventful stage on the long journey of five years at the "Hill." We walked our share of the "tours" and served our share of the punishment generally. There is an end to everything, however, and the passing months left us on the eve of Commencement. It goes without saying that we were glad to get home and enjoy a vacation of three months. The following year found practically the whole class back again at the Institute and this time with more assurance and confidence than formerly. We no longer had to take orders as Sub-Freshmen, for we could give a few orders ourselves and we could tell the "Freshies" a thing or two about the place from first hand information.

We were encouraged when several of our number were promoted to the rank of Corporals. Although we were not permitted to have much to do with the running of the school this year we did learn what it was all about. Commencement again came and this time left us on the threshold of our Sophomore year. This year found us even more confident and assured than before. We were now Sergeants and as such enjoyed more privileges than we had thought. We began to take a prominent part in the campus activities in general and it was not long before the rest of the school came to realize that the Sophomore Class was a class to be reckoned with. We are looking forward to next year when we will assume the title of "upper-classmen." Then our dream will have begun to be realized. It will only be a comparatively short journey from there to the coveted position of Seniors. Then the world will begin to discover the latent genius of the present Sophomore Class.

FRESHMAN CLASS HISTORY

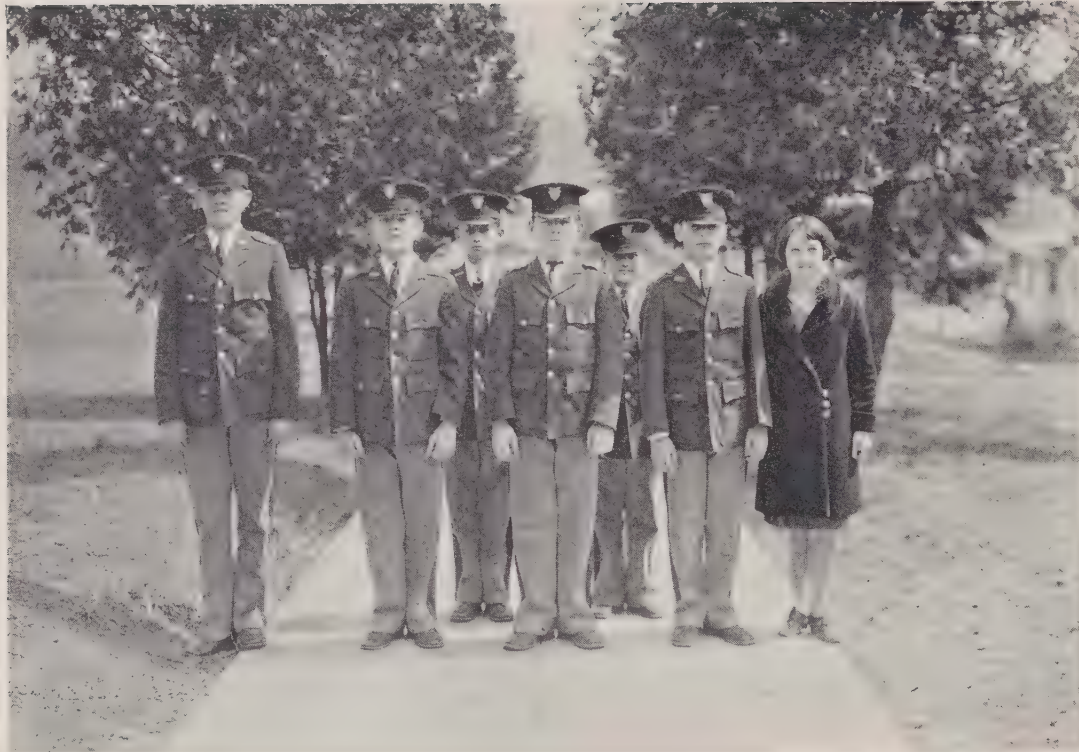

IF CLASSES, like nations, are happier when they have no history, then ours, the Freshmen Class, must be indeed a happy one. Nothing out of the ordinary has occurred for our Class during the past year—we have gone blithely and serenely on our own sweet way. We have passed through the thrills of the unsophisticated little Sub-Freshmen and have not as yet acquired the importance of the would-be-dignified Sophomores.

Although we realized that we were not to be compared with the insignificant Sub-Freshmen, we were somewhat worried at first that “Fresh” should still be prefixed to our name, but we attempted to console ourselves by placing the emphasis on the “Sub” when addressing the first year men. Our class is admitted to be slightly more civilized than the ordinary Freshman Class and we think this encouraging, inasmuch as still waters run deep. While we have not as yet done anything to startle the world, we have worlds of confidence and they tell us that this is necessary in order to achieve greatness. At any rate, we are looking forward to a successful year when we come back again next September, and we, too, have great hopes for the future.

THE Y. M. C. A. AT THE INSTITUTE

REALIZING the importance of spiritual, as well as physical and mental development, the Young Men's Christian Association has taken upon itself a part of that duty at the Institute. It will be remembered by every student that early in the fall, when they arrived at the Institute, the Y. M. C. A. began its work of making life here on the campus just a bit more pleasant, more interesting, and more enjoyable. Under the influence of the "Y", many of the fellows were made to feel the value of, and enjoy to great extent, life at the Institute; especially the social side.

Not so long after the session had started, the "Y" began its study classes which met each Wednesday night. In these classes were discussed questions which confront every boy in life at one time or another and about which he much make some decision. Much benefit was derived from such discussions. Before the end of the session the effect and influence of these Bible study classes had become quite apparent among the students. The Y. M. C. A. approaches the student from two angles; namely, devotional and social. Although the devotional side is by far the more apparent, the social side is equally as interesting. From the hands of the Y. M. C. A. the students enjoy three receptions a year. These receptions are always enjoyable times as many of the old students and graduates come back to the "Hill" for such occasions. The "Y" is doing a great work at the Institute. It helps to give the students a wholesome outlook on life and the ability properly to evaluate the things of life.

MILITARY

MILITARY REVIEW

THE MILITARY system at M. P. C. I. is a very important feature. Although carried on in somewhat of a modified form, it affords valuable training for young men, and especially those who come from the city and need physical development. Military training is beneficial, not only as a physical builder, but as a mind trainer. It inculcates the habit of thinking and concentrating and, above all, it inculcates respect for authority. It creates a sense of responsibility and duty.

At the Institute the Corps is divided into two Companies, "A" and "B". Each year, three competitive drills are held for the purpose of determining which Company is the more proficient. To the Company winning the highest number of points, a beautiful silver cup is awarded. This feature causes much interest, enthusiasm, and friendly rivalry among the Cadets. Last year Captain H. H. Sloop led "B" Company to a victory over "A" Company, although by a narrow margin.

Another feature that arouses interest among the Cadets is the fact that each year a gold medal is awarded to the Cadet who proves himself the most proficient in the Manual of Arms, based on his showing in the Individual Contest which is held at the end of each year. Last year, Cadet J. A. Fowler, Jr., of Greensboro, N. C., won out in the Individual Contest, thus winning the honor of being the best drilled Cadet on the "Hill."

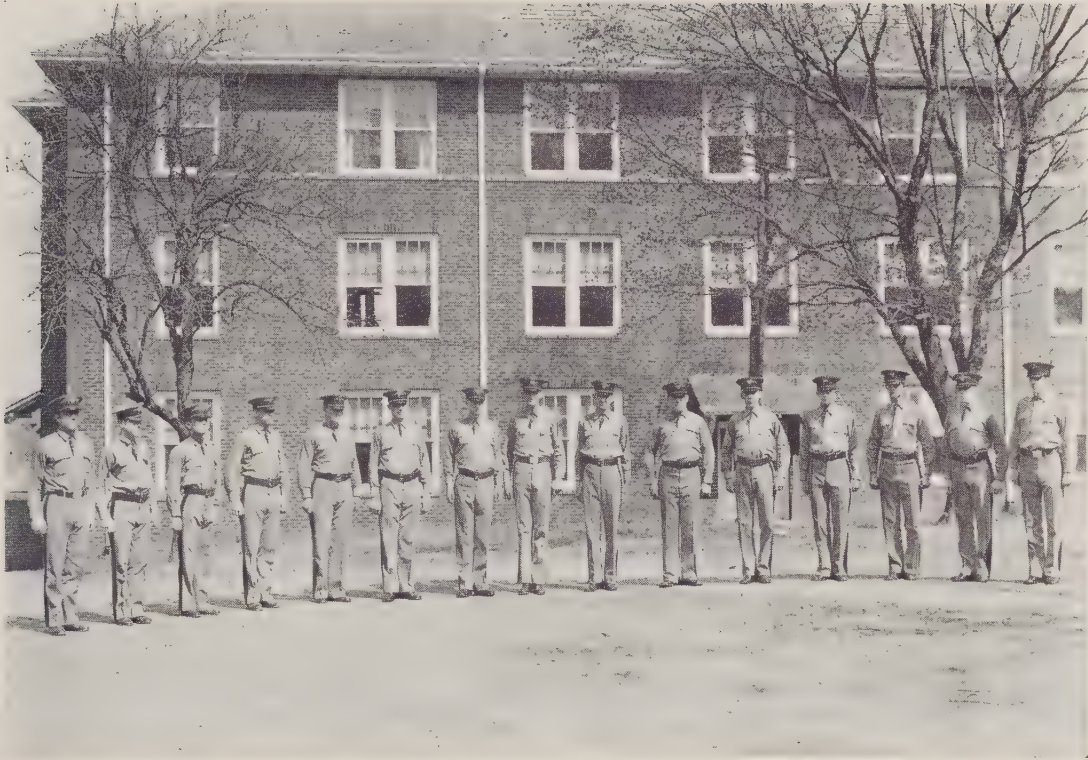

Military training has proved itself to be a decided success at the Institute. It develops the spirit of loyalty and enthusiasm which is so characteristic of M. P. C. I.

ATHLETICS

Coach, D. L. RHOAD, JR.

Coach Rhoad, although he has served but one year as coach of the Institute, has won for himself the reputation of being the best coach who has been at the Hill in a decade; he also has won the name of treating each one of his players alike and playing no favorites. He knows how to get out of his men the best that is in them and how, by talking to his players, to keep up the morale of the team. He has taken comparatively raw material and whipped it into winning teams.

As a man, he is mentally, morally and physically above reproach. Once again Wofford has opened her doors and sent to us a man worthy of her name.

Review of Season

ALTHOUGH Football at M. P. C. I. is still in its infancy, it has established a reputation of which no one can rightly be ashamed. This year's aggregation played nine games, four of which found the "Red Devils" on the big end of the score. The remaining five games found these same Devils losers, although after hard fought battles. At first the record would seem to indicate that the season was not a success. Such, however, was not the case. Although the season was a failure in point of games won it was a success for two reasons; in the first place, the games with the five teams to which the Institute lost were with teams that were admittedly out of our class. Then, too, the Institute team began the season with but three letter men and the season witnessed the debut of several players who improved very rapidly and who, in all probability will add much strength to the team next year. The heartbreaker of the season was the Weaver game. In this game the breaks were clearly against the Cadets; the game was played at Weaverville in an ocean of mud. The Cadets had clearly outplayed Weaverites in every department of the game up to the last two minutes of play, at which time one of the players for Mount Pleasant being injured, unknown to the rest of the team, allowed a play to be run over him and the opposing back, taking advantage of the muddy field, ran fifty yards for a touchdown. As for the rest of the games, the team has no excuses nor no apologies to make for it was just a case of the best team winning. Reviewing the season as a whole, we would say that the record made by the team is nothing of which the school or team should be ashamed.

W. H. GRIFFIN, JR.

Weight, 160, End, Height, 6 Ft.

From the "Palmetto" State comes a chap with grit and determination to spare. When this lad was first introduced to the gridiron last year he did not look like certain varsity timber. However, as the season wore on, he improved rapidly and became one of the most dependable players on the team. He is a sure receiver of passes and also a passer of no mean ability. For sheer grit and determination "Bill" has few equals on the team. We look for him to be "Light Horse" Harry Wilson's successor at West Point.

K. F. CONRAD

Weight, 150, End, Height, 5 Ft. 9 In.

This was "Ken's" first year on the varsity. His playing was of the highest order and not a few ends learned, to their sorrow, what type of end he is. Many players have heard the sound of their death knell as they hit this end's territory. Considering his lack of previous experience, he acquitted himself in a manner worthy of the highest commendation. He is anything but slow on his feet and he also has a powerful drive. We expect him to make a stellar performer for the "Mountain Bears."

J. C. CURRY

Weight 190, Tackle, Height 6 Ft. 1 In.

"Horse" is the biggest man on the team and incidentally one of the toughest. He looks slow in a Football game but you'd be surprised. He makes it a point to get in every play, no matter where it is. He doesn't know what it means to let a man go by. He is an unusually hard tackler; after he hits a man twice in a game, a new man is needed. He has two more years with the team and should develop into a wonderfully live man.

W. E. HAGER

Weight 189, Fullback, Height 6 Ft.

"Bill" came to us this season with a great reputation as a result of his playing with the Mooresville High School team the previous year, and retained it. In addition to his work on the defense, he is an unusually hard man to stop on a line buck or end run. He is a very consistent punter, and on many occasions, when things looked dark for the local team, he saved the day by punting out of danger. In recognition of his stellar work this year, he was elected Captain for next year and here's wishing him luck.

H. W. CZARNITZKI

Wgt. 135, Quarterback, Hgt. 5 Ft. 7 In.

"Pete" is another of the South Carolinians who helped to make Football history at the "Hill" this year. Although small and light "Pete" makes up for this by having genuine Football sense and the ability to diagnose his opponents plan of attack and to run the most effective plays in any situation. He is level headed and cool as a cucumber in a game and he calls signals with the air of an experienced player. In the Oak Ridge game he covered himself with glory by the way in which he withstood his more experienced opponents.

STEVE ADAMS

Weight 165, Center, Height 6 Ft.

"Steve" has been with us only one year but in this time he has demonstrated the fact that he has the "big idea" about playing football. His passing was accurate and he seldom failed to open up a hole when called upon or to break up any play directed his way. His favorite pastime was throwing the opposing center for about four yards and going through and getting the man with the ball before the interference knew what it was all about. His only failing was his tendency to unnecessary roughness, due to his over zealousness and his desire to break up something.

K. F. SHEALY

Wgt. 150, Halfback, Hgt. 5 Ft. 9 In.

"Karl" also comes to us from the "City Unlimited," having been with us only one year. He is a hard hitting back and also made some nice line plunges. Whenever he took the ball with the intention of going through the line something usually gave way and he had an uncanny habit of staying squarely behind his interference until they were taken out of the way. Karl also has two more years with us and within this time he should develop into a back of no ordinary ability.

TED E. HINSON, Capt.

Wgt. 170, Tackle, Hgt. 5 Ft. 10 Ins.

A tower of strength in the line, who never gave an inch without a fight. As Captain of the team he led his team through a successful season. He was always in the thickest of the fight encouraging his men to "go get 'em." Ted has been a faithful servant of the football team and we regret to see him go. His presence always aided the morale of the team and his absence from the line-up invariably made itself felt on the team in a close game.

R. M. WILSON

Wgt. 145, Quarterback, Hgt. 5 Ft. 6 In.

"Rupe," our diminutive speed merchant, hails from the "metropolis" of Roseboro. He makes his presence on the field known by his unceasing chatter and his spectacular end runs which never fail to bring the stands to their feet. As a receiver of punts, he has no equals on the team and he seldom failed to return punts shaking off tackler after tackler until he finally outran his interference, which he had a habit of doing, since none of them could keep up with him.

H. H. SLOOP

Wgt. 175, Guard, Hgt. 5 Ft. 9 In.

This young giant of Kannapolis "Ice Man" fame is undoubtedly the hardest worker and most consistent trainer on the team. "Sailor" acquired his Herculean physique by climbing masts and shoveling coal in the Navy. As a guard, he is a regular stone wall on defense, and a steam roller on offense. Sloop is especially noted for his habit of breaking through the line and smearing plays before they were started. He has never been knocked out in a game in the three years he has played.

P. H. LIPE

Wgt. 165, Center, Hgt. 5 Ft. 10 In.

Paul was inducted into the ranks of football last year as green as they make 'em. His willingness to work and his ability to take orders, however, were not long in bringing him into the limelight, and before long he was grabbing passes like a veteran. He is capable of playing any position on the team and his endurance and stamina enable him to stay in the thick of the fight while his opponents are dropping off. A born football player is our solution to his case.

C. W. TURNER

Weight 140, Tackle, Height 5 Ft. 9 In.

Turner is another of the first year men who made a name for himself in football. Here is another of the not so good class who got famous overnight by hard work and consistent practice. It is generally admitted that Turner has the makings of a real football player if he will only continue to show the same doggedness and grit which has characterized his work for the past year.

Librarian: "Yes, madam. Something religious?"

Lady: "Er—no—not—now. He is convalescing."

Teacher: "Willie, what is an embassy?"

Willie: "A place where trans-Atlantic fliers change their clothes."

Major Webster (on History class):
"Tom, what is the meaning of the word 'despot'?"

Tom Irwin: "You mean despot as in 'He made a 'desp'ate' attempt?"

Boy: "Can a person be punished for something he hasn't done?"

Teacher: "Of course not."

Boy: "Well, I haven't done my geometry."

Major Glenn (on Latin Class)—
"Conrad, what part of speech is
'nec'?"

Conrad: "A verb."

Major Glenn: "Hardly, it is not a verb although it resembles a verb that is spelled almost like it."

The English tourist was taking in his first view of Niagara Falls, and a guide was trying to impress him with their magnitude.

"Millions and millions of gallons flow by every minute," explained the guide.

"How many in a day?" asked the tourist.

"Oh, billions and billions!" answered the other.

The visitor looked across and down and up, as if gauging the flow, and then turned away, seemingly unimpressed.

"Runs all night, too, I suppose?" he remarked nonchalantly.

A Scotchman whose name was McIntosh, and who was proud of the fact that he was directly descended from the chief of the clan, was having a dispute over the fare he owed a taxi driver.

The man with the meter talked loud and harshly, and it angered the Highlander.

"Do you know who I am?" he demanded, proudly drawing himself up to his full height. "I'm a MacIntosh."

The taxi driver snorted.

"I don't care if you're an umbrella," he said. "I have my rights."
